6TH ANNUAL MEETING

The Associated Charities Met Yesterday Afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Building.

MOST WORTHY INSTITUTION.

Reports of Officers and of Board of Directors Show a Successful Year's Work—Tribute to Valued Services of Rev. Dr. Strange.

The sixth annual meeting of the Associated Charities was held at three P. M. yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. Rev. C. S. Blackwell, D. D., the president, was in the chair; the secretary, Miss Carrie Price, was also present. The report of the directors was read by Rev. A. D. McClure and it showed that the work of the past year has been very satisfactory in every particular. The report details the work of the Board at its quarterly meetings held during the year; the announcement of the death of the vice president, Col. Roger Moore, at the April meeting and the election of Mr. P. Pearsall to succeed him in that office and Mr. James F. Post to succeed him as a member of the Board of Directors; the announcement at the meeting in July, of the death of Mrs. R. N. Sweet, one of the Society's most efficient superintendents, and at the suggestion of the officers of the First Presbyterian church the election of Mrs. William Warrock to fill the vacancy, and the purpose of the Board to henceforth hold its quarterly meetings on the second Thursdays of January, April, July and October of each year. The decline of pauperism, increased efficiency in dealing with street beggars and tramps and a good financial condition are shown from the secretary's report and that official is highly complimented for her painstaking, faithful and efficient work during the year, together with superintendents and other officers. The loss by the removal of Dr. Strange to another city is deplored and merited praise of his great service is noted.

The president, Rev. C. S. Blackwell, D. D., made his annual report as follows:

Yoke Fellows in Labors of Love.

Another, the sixth year of our organization, has added confirmation to the public conviction that the poor of Wilmington are well provided for, and at the least possible expense. None have suffered, and an equitable disbursement of funds has been made after personal and painstaking investigation in each case. Lest people forget, we reiterate here the chief characteristics of our work as set forth by Dr. Strange in the third annual report:

First.—We frown down and discourage in every way possible all begging at the door, at the store, or on the street. Begging degrades the beggar, it weakens character, and breeds deceit and laziness. Send every one to the central office. If they say they have been and the association will not help, that is sufficient reason why you should not help. If you fear you may be turning off a worthy person in distress, thinking possibly the Associated Charities may not be able to assist, send a note with the beggar to the central office, authorizing the secretary to help, if worthy, and charge to you.

Second—We make thorough investigations. We make visits to the homes. We ask the police for information. And also we find out where the money goes. We ask you to stand by our investigations. If we investigate and then think it best not to help, you support us and also refuse to help. If a family drops in on us from the country to swell our already large pauper list, leaving better homes in the country, we tell them we cannot help them here, but will help them in getting back home, you support us in the policy we have found neccessary."

Let the public be fully assured that not a worthy one will be permitted to suffer in this city if the case is made known to us. Be equally certain that frauds will deligently be sought out and refused.

The Board of Directors at the last meeting very appropriately directed that this report should bear special testimony to the work of Rev. Robt. Strange, D. D., in behalf of this association. The only regret of your President is that a reasonable limit of this report forbids full justice to the subject. As the burden of promiscous charity rests heaviest upon the time and strength of the ministers, it was but natural that three clergymen of Wilmington, Rev. W. C. Norman, D. D., Rev. P. H. Hoge, D. D., and Rev. Robert Strange, D. D., should originate the present wise and equitable system of Associated Charities, and it is no disparagement to others to say, in many respects, in relation to this work, the greatest of these was Dr. Strange. His almost life long residence in the city, and perfect knowledge of the people who should help and who should receive help, together with his warm heart united to a singularly practical mind made him the man of peculiar fitness to launch this institution and steer it successfully through the first breakers of doubt, discussion and adoption. The deft touch of his practical hand is visible in the personnel of its first managers and officers. The mark of his consecrated common sense is seen in almost all of its acts and undertakings for the first six years of its operations. The fine frictionless adjustment of its simple machinery to the county, city, churches and general public, by which accomplishes so much without noise and observation, is very like the finely poised personality of Dr. Strange himself. It is, therefore, proper that we should express here our highest esteem of the man who did such a good work for the people and the poor, and left such an enduring monument of his unselfish Christian manhood in the origin and organization of the Associated Charities of Wilmington.

Respectfully,
CALVIN S. BLACKWELL, President.

The secretary, Miss Carrie L. Price, then made her report, which shows the following interesting facts: Number of superintendents, 15; number of visitors, 30; number of beneficiaries who have been and are still receiving aid monthly, 89; number who received aid, but are no longer assisted, 60 (of this number, 26 were assisted only once); number receiving aid intermittently, 26; number receiving wood only, 14. Total, 189.

Transportation has been furnished 22 persons, the railroad companies kindly giving charity rates. The Association has assisted in two burials. The chief causes of need are from sickness, no male support, large families, and lack or uncertainty of work. Groceries, wood, shoes and clothing are given as supplies. The office has been open every week day, except about three weeks in September, when a vacation was given the secretary, she having made arrangements for regular applicants before leaving the city.

The statement of the penny savings bank is as follows: Balance January 1, 1900, $16.63; deposits from January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1901, $9.56. Total, $26.19. Amount withdrawn, $4.64. Balance January 1, 1901, $21.55

The term of office of the following directors expired January 1st, 1901, and they were all unanimously re elected, with the exception of Rev. Robt. Strange, D. D., who has removed from the city: Rev. Dr. C. S. Blackwell, Rev. Robt. Strange, D. D., Rev. J. H. Hall, Rev. Dr. S. Mendelsohn, Dr. D. W. Bullock, Mr. J. C. Stevenson and Mr. P. Pearsall. The vacancy created by the removal of Dr. Strange will be filled at the meeting of the Board of Directors, which will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. At that meeting the officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

AUDIT AND FINANCE BOARD.

Regular Semi-Monthly Meeting Last Night. Many Minor Matters Considered and Bills Audited and Approved

Principally routine matters engaged the attention of the Board of Audit and Finance at its regular semi monthly meeting last night at the City Hall. Chairman McQueen presided and members in attendance were Messrs. C. W. Yates, Jesse Wilder and W. A. Risch.

Bills for current expenses were audited and approved, and the usual reports made and ordered on file.

The Street Railway Company was ordered paid $90 for hauling sand on its cars for the Market and Princess street paving. A bill in favor of the same company for requiring a regrading of a portion of Orange street traversed by its track and which was first done in conformity to plans of the authorities in the street improvement department, and afterwards changed by that authority, was left open for further information anent the subject.

Action was deferred in the matter of concurring in the extra appropriation for the removal of certain houses on Fifth between Dock and Orange streets. The board wished more information as to the condition the street would be left in; any possible extra cost, etc.

The matter of allowing the rebates, amounting to about $4,000, received from citizens in payment of pro rata assessments for the improvement of streets bounding their property and for sand furnished certain individuals, was reconsidered, and this amount was allowed to revert to the appropriation for streets and wharves, from whence it came. This action was taken in view of a later estimate of the City Clerk and Treasurer of the revenue to be derived by the city for the balance of the fiscal year. The Clerk and Treasurer now estimates that he will collect $8,000 or $10,000 more than he thought when his former statement was submitted.

Fayetteville's Smallpox.

Dr. McGougan, County Superintendent of Health, at Fayetteville, yesterday at noon issued an official bulletin stating that one case of varioloid in the mildest form, was discovered in the morning. The patient is a negro named A. J. Johnson, living on Hay street. He is already convalescing, but was sent to the hospital as a matter of precaution. This is the first case reported in a week. The Observer says that Col. Cook and family have returned to the city from their week' temporary isolation at the Fuller place on Harrington Hill, and that smallpox failed to make its appearance in the family as was anticipated.

Will Give Benefit Entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Tiencken will give an entertainment to friends at their home, 404 Castle street, this afternoon and evening for the benefit of the improvement fund of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church. All their friends and especially members of the congregation, are cordially invited to be present and enjoy themselves.

Purchased Interest in Business.

The STAR learns that Mr. Norwood H. Lockhardt, who for several years has been bartender at the Atlantic Inn, corner Front and Red Cross streets, has purchased an interest in the liquor business of Mr. W. Van Hardin, on Princess street, and will in the future be found at the new location. His friends wish for him much success in his new business venture.

CITY HOSPITAL MANAGERS.

Regular Monthly Meeting Yesterday—Dr. A. H. Harriss Named as Temporary Successor to Dr. Lane.

No action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the board of managers of the City Hospital yesterday afternoon relative to the election of a permanent successor to the late Dr. W. W. Lane, but Chairman D. McEachern stated that Dr. A. H. Harriss had consented to visit the hospital, and with the capable assistance of the subordinate officials there, he would act as temporary superintendent until permanent arrangement can be made.

The meeting was held at 2 30 o'clock P. M., Chairman McEachern presiding, and others in attendance being Commissioners Holmes and Montgomery and Aldermen Springer and Spencer.

The death of Dr. Lane was formally announced at the meeting and Messrs. Springer and Montgomery were named as a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the feeling of the board at the demise of the late superintendent. A report will be made at a subsequent meeting.

The report of the conduct of the hospital was made by the interne, Mr. James M. Hall, and shows the following facts: There were treated in the hospital during January 65 patients, of which 37 were from the city, 12 from the county and 16 pay patients. Of this number 20 were white males, 16 white females, 19 colored males and 10 colored females.

There were 25 patients remaining in the hospital Dec. 31st, and 40 were admitted during the month, 37 were discharged, two died and 26 were left for treatment Jan. 31st. Rations were furnished 161 days to pay patients, 697 days to charity patients and 459 days to employes, making a total of 1,317. The average cost per capita per day was 15 cents.

The financial part of the report shows that there was expended for subsistence, $201.65; general expenses, $256.18, and salaries, $203, making the total disbursements $660.83. The receipts were: From pay patients, $247.15; prescriptions, $42 90; city appropriation, $166.66; county appropriation, $250.00. Total receipts, $706.71. The report was ordered on file.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

Negro Woman and Man Arrested Yesterday for Stealing Money and Silk.

Martha Price, colored, was arrested yesterday by Officer C. E. Wood on a warrant charging her with stealing $26 in cash from Amos Biggs, also colored, on November 24th. She had been dodging the police very successfully but is at last landed in the lock-up. Her case will be heard by the mayor this morning.

Another case of larceny will be heard in the municipal court this morning. It is against Wm. Robeson, colored, who attempted to get off with about 20 yards of silk from the store of J. H. Rehder & Co. yesterday afternoon, but two of the clerks, Messrs. B. T. Powers and Claud Morse, were notified of the theft and the negro hada't gotten out of the store before they were after him. The race was close and exciting. The negro took down the railroad track with his fleet-footed pursuers close behind him and they succeeded in running him down at the end of the A. C. L. passenger shed. The silk was taken from him and he was turned over to Officers E. Piner and John A. Martin, who escorted him to the guard house.

REMAINS LAID TO REST.

Funeral of the Late Dr. W. W. Lane Held Yesterday Morning.

From St. James' Episcopal Church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. Frederick H. T. Horsfield, the rector, assisted by Rev. James Carmichael, rector of St. John's parish, impressively conducted the funeral of the lamented Dr. W. W. Lane, whose death was announced in these columns yesterday. Many friends and acquaintances, among them being some of his comrades in war, were present and were visibly affected by the solemn funeral rites—the last solemn act in the drama of his life. At Oakdale cemetery, where the remains were tenderly laid to rest, there was also a large gathering and several beautiful floral tributes were laid upon the grave.

The pall bearers on the sad occasion were: Honorary, Dr. W. W. Harriss, Mr. B. G. Worth and Mr. Wm. Watters; active, Dr. T. S. Burbank, Dr. A. H. Harriss, Dr. W. J. Love, Dr. W. J. H. Bellamy, Mr. George Kidder and Mr. James M. Hall.

Mr. James Swann, of the wealthy firm of Inman, Swann & Co., of New York, arrived yesterday and will be the guest for several days of Col. K. M. Murchison at Orton plantation. Mr. Swann and Col. Murchison will spend much of the time at hunting. On Monday there arrived by express from one of Mr. Swann's hunting preserves in Tennessee four very fine deer hounds and they were sent down the river for the week's chases.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The Craig Resolution to Impeach Chief Justice Furches and Justice Douglas.

CONSIDERED IN COMMITTEE.

No Conclusion Reached—Further Consideration Deferred Until Thursday Night—The Election Law—A Spirited Discussion.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N., C., February 5.—It was 11.30 o'clock last night when the Judiciary Committee of the House having under consideration the Craig resolution to impeach Judges Furches and Douglas, adjourned their executive session, and then it was to meet again at 3 o'clock to resume the consideration of the report of the sub-committee.

The discussion in the executive session last night was a lively one, the voices of the speakers frequently penetrating the massive walls of the State library, where the executive session was held. Ex Judge Connor urged upon the committee that only a severe rebuke should be administered to the two judges. Among those who argued for impeachment proceedings were Craig, Graham and Spainhour. The report of the sub committee consists of nine typewritten pages of legal cap, and in reciting the facts in the case as developed by their investigation, gives conclusions in law which are very favorable to impeachment.

The most significant sentence in the report is as follows:

"The manner in which this order was issued indicates to our minds that the judges who directed it to issue did not think that they had the power to issue the same, and that they were undertaking to shift the responsibility from themselves to the clerk of the Supreme Court.

Many are of the opinion that the forthcoming report of the committee to the House will be unfavorable to impeachment and recommend a severe rebuke to the two judges as urged by Judge Connor. If this is not the case there is a strong probability that there will be majority and minority reports.

[Special Star Telegram.]

The second executive session of the House Judiciary Committee to consider the sub committee's report on the Craig resolution to impeach Justices Furches and Douglas of the Supreme Court was held this afternoon. An adjournment was taken, however, after three hours session to Thursday night, without reaching an agreement. To quote a prominent committeeman, the "committee decided the matter was of grave importance, not to be entered upon without much deliberation and thorough discussion."

Petitions to Change Election Laws.

Petitions to change the election laws precipitated a spirited discussion to-day in the House. Mr. Zachary, speaking to a question of personal privilege, charged that a great majority of the petitions to change the election laws, presented, are prepared by a coterie of enemies, with Richmond Pearson the chief, for base political capital. Other Democrats charged that the names on many petitions being presented by Republican members are forged. The charges elicited a storm of indignation from Republican members.

Mr. Craig's substitute for Mr. Gaither's bill, repealing all divorce laws since '87, came up as the special order and shut off the strong debate on the election law petitions. The change was "the devil for a witch," as another long discussion followed. The speeches by Connor and Stewart resulted in the adoption of a motion by Craig that the bill be the special order Thursday, at eleven o'clock.

Bills passed final reading: To secure passage of fish in the Cape Fear and Northeast rivers; for relief of the clerk of the Superior Court of Robeson county.

Bills introduced: By Rountree, to incorporate the Duplin and Onslow Railroad Company; to protect owners of timbers. By Shannonhouse, to improve roads in Charlotte township. By Rheinhardt, to enlarge the power of county boards of pensions.

The Text Book Bill.

Aycock's text book bill was made the special order for 11 o'clock to day.

In the Senate the bill to allow New Hanover commissioners to appropriate $500 each for the W. L. I. and Naval Reserves, passed final reading.

Other bills passed: To incorporate Washington; substitute the State seal for the star and "N. C." on the State flag; to authorize Scotland county to purchase land for a count house, jail and home for aged infirm (second reading); to allow Wilson county to issue bonds (second reading); to appoint a committee to investigate charges of extravagance, fraud and corruption in the Blind Institute; resolution to investigate the running expenses of the steamer Lily.

Bills introduced: By London, to provide for the Soldiers' Home in accordance with resolution of the recent Confederate Veterans' Convention. By Buchanan, to prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons. By Arrington, to apportion Congressional districts. By Smith, to require registration of architects. By McNeill, to abolish the office of standard keeper of Cumberland.

A message was received by both branches of the Assembly transmitting the report of the University, and urging a liberal appropriation for its support.

— Mr. W. R. Barksdale left last night for Baltimore.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 6.

ARGUMENTS TO JUSTIFY A CONTEMPLATED WRONG.

There is not the shadow of a doubt that the McKinley administration is determined to hold on to Cuba if a pretext can be made behind which it can take refuge as a justification for the breach of faith. As a matter of political expediency a census of the population was taken last summer as a preliminary to the calling of a convention to draft a constitution, which was to be followed as soon as practicable by organized government for the island and for the municipalities, and then the government state, as we might call it, and municipal would be turned over to the Cubans, and the U. S. troops would be withdrawn. That was the impression created by this action of the administration, and that was the impression intended to be created. This was inspired by political expediency, and that is all it really meant. The administration was simply pulling along, killing time to tide over the political campaign, and was fooling both the Cubans and the American people, for nothing was further from its thoughts then than releasing its hold on the island and withdrawing from it.

The census was taken, elections were ordered for delegates to the convention, they were chosen and the convention met. It has not yet quite completed its work, but has progressed far enough to give a pretty good idea of the kind of Government it will provide for. And now the administration, if it can be judged by its organs and representatives, claims the right as the "trustee" of the people of Cuba, as their self-constituted guardian, to revise the constitution, and to accept or reject it whether it be acceptable to the people of Cuba or not.

There are various pretences put forward in advance to justify this kind of interference. The constitution provides for universal suffrage. This, according to the dispatches sent out from Havana to the American newspapers, creates consternation among the business communities and people of substance, and threatens a financial and commercial panic. Something must be done to protect them from universal suffrage, and it is broadly hinted that the McKinley administration and the Congress at Washington, exercising supervisory control, must put an embargo on this universal suffrage business, as they did in Hawaii, in Porto Rico and will do in the Philippines. Coincident with this panic talk, the Republican administration papers are publishing editorials consisting of special pleadings to justify this Government in dictating what the Cubans shall or shall not put in their constitution, and refusing to approve of the constitution if the convention refuses to obey the dictation from Washington.

We published a few days ago and commented upon one of those special pleas from the New York Tribune. Here is another, arguing on the late decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, from the Philadelphia Press, which is even more signficant than that from the Tribune, because while both speak for the administration the Press is closer to it, as its editorials on such subjects are either written or inspired by Hon. Emory Smith, Mr. McKinley's Postmaster General. On national questions the Press voices the sentiments of Mr. Smith, and Mr. Smith voices the sentiments of Mr. McKinley. Here is the way it quibbles and discusses the question of Cuban independence, to which this Government is solemnly pledged:

> The United States in pledging "independence" to Cuba pledged no more and no less a measure of national power than American nations similarly situated enjoy. If the present constitutional convention of Cuba were to call over an European prince to head the new State the United States would act as certainly and more promptly than it did when a "council of notables" in the capital of Mexico called over an Austrian prince some forty years ago. A Constitution may be, as Cuban papers argue, a domestic instrument, if the new Constitution opened the way even for such a financial supervision over Cuban railway and banking franchises by foreign agencies as Brazil permitted over a generation ago under the Empire, and from which the Republic seeks to extricate itself, the United States would act without hesitation. Cuban "independence" does not permit Cuba to cede its territory, to grant any European state a port or coaling station, to establish any but a republican form of government or to mortgage its credit so as to imperil its financial or administrative autonomy.
>
> These are all the rights of "independent States," and the rights of all such States every manual of international law declares to be equal, yet no American State to the south of the United States has the power to do these things, and Cuban "independence" as little permits this. Unless General Gomez has been misreported he has declared that Cubans have a right, if they prefer, to misgovern Cuba. It must be gravely doubted if Cuban independence goes even so far as that. As the Supreme Court has wisely said, the United States holds the island as trustee, not for the government but for the people of the island. "As between the United States and Cuba," said the Supreme Court, "that island is territory held in trust for the inhabitants of Cuba."
>
> This is the cestui que trust or ward for whom the United States acts, and, like any prudent guardian, the United States is bound to consider first and foremost the welfare of those for whom it acts—the inhabitants—to whom Cuba rightfully belongs and to whose exclusive control it will be surrendered when a stable government shall have been established by their voluntary consent.

This pledge will be sacredly kept. Whether it was wise or foolish or whether the Cubans are grateful or ungrateful is apart from the discharge of a solemn international pledge; but this pledge committed the United States to no indefinite or unlimited independence, to no wilful misgovernment and to no administration or constitution which does not represent the real will and real interests of the Cuban people or "the inhabitants of the island." Where a sovereign government exists in a given territory it is assumed that that government expresses the will and represents the interests of the people over which it rules and for which it speaks; but this is exactly what does not exist in Cuba. There is no sovereignty there. The "constitutional convention" is not the sovereign representative of a sovereign State. The essence and element of sovereignty is and remains in trust in the hands of the United States. There is no "Cuban" government, and therefore to-day no "Cuban" sovereignty in Cuban hands. "The declaration by Congress," said the Supreme Court, "that the people of Cuba were, and of right ought to be, free and independent was not intended as a recognition of an organized government instituted by the people of that island."

This is nothing more nor less than the special pleading of a man who is defending in advance something which he knows is wrong, and must be defended, if at all, by cunning arguments manufactured for the occasion, arguments which ignore and count as nothing facts and pledges to which the American people are in honor bound. This talk of forming combinations, directly or indirectly, with European governments or their agents and giving them claims or recognition that might militate against this country, as in the case of Mexico, is the veriest rot. Every one in this country supposed that the Cubans were fighting for the right to govern themselves—for a republic—in favor of which they had spoken so freely and emphatically, and not to establish a monarchy or anything bordering on it. That's why the people of the United States had a kindred feeling for them and sympathized so sincerely with them and finally espoused their cause, and helped them drive the Spaniards out, or rather drove the Spaniards out for them.

If they were to establish anything but a Republic, it would be virtually a breach of faith with this country and one that would justify the American people in insisting upon their keeping their faith and getting within both the letter and spirit of the Monroe doctrine. When the Congress of the United States declared that the people of Cuba are of right and ought to be free and independant, free and independent meant that Cuba was to be a Republic ruled by its own people and not by military satraps or agents or representatives of European monarchies. When they have done that, established a Government for and by the people of Cuba, they will have kept faith with us, and we have no right to expect or ask any more and no more right to dictate what further they shall do than we have to dictate to the people of Brazil what they shall do. Regardless of Cuba we owe it to ourselves to keep our pledges.

OPPOSITION EXPECTED.

It would be unreasonable to expect any kind of a measure to pass the Legislature of this or any other State without encountering some opposition, no matter how meritorious it might be, for there are some men so constituted that they are bound to get on the opposite side, and sometimes they fight like the mischief when they do. The worse the cause the harder they fight.

Some of these questions are of a business character, and yet in the discussion of these the business feature is entirely lost sight of by their opponents, and the opposition is based on altogether different and irrelevant grounds.

One of these measures is before the Legislature now, in which it is proposed to impose a tax of $1 a head on dogs, the double object being to raise necessary revenue for the State and to encourage sheep culture, which would if properly encouraged become a source of considerable wealth to the State, but the profitable pursuit of which under present conditions is practically impossible. No one would call a tax of $1 excessive, and no right thinking person would object to paying such a tax provided others paid.

There are good and useful dogs, and bad and worthless dogs, and the good and useful dog is often held responsible for the meanness of the worthless cur, so that the owner of the good dog is interested in having the worthless cur discouraged and eliminated. It isn't a question of dog or no dog, it is simply a question of sheep versus the worthless, depredating dog, which doesn't care for anybody and doesn't seem to have anybody to care for him, until it comes to paying a tax on him, when the kicking begins.

As we see it, the question simply resolves itself into this; whether it is better to have a small number of good and useful dogs, and flocks of sheep grazing on our hill sides and pastures, than many packs of half starved, worthless, prowling curs roving at large and depredating on the sheepfolds and poultry yards of industrious and thrifty people. If the decision is in favor of the prowling curs then opposition to the dog tax is right.

ANOTHER OBJECT LESSON.

Yesterday we presented some facts and figures from The Hardware Dealers' Magazine showing how the high protective tariff fosters the Wire Nail Trust, and what it costs the American purchasers of wire nails. Here is another, showing what the protective tariff costs the American people in other lines. It is an extract from a letter published in the Chicago Record, by a writer who signs himself "A Lincoln Republican," but isn't stuck on McKinley-Hanna Republicanism. Among other things, the writer says:

> "During the Summer of 1900, while travelling in Scotland, we found that Minneapolis flour was selling in Glasgow at the rate of $1 a sack of forty-eight pounds, while in Davenport, Ia., $1 25 was charged for the same. A few miles from Glasgow we saw a farmer harvesting wheat with an American made self-binder; he told us it cost him just 14 pounds English money—that is, $68; the same machine would cost in Davenport, Ia., $125, nearly double the price paid by the Scottish farmer.
>
> "The price of sugar in the United States is fully double the price paid in Great Britain. It costs the people of the United States $200,000,000 yearly for sugar, one half of which is taken by the tariff and trusts.
>
> "If the American manufacturer gets a profit on goods sent to foreign countries, what an immense source of wealth there must be in the home trade, where they charge from 40 to 80 per cent. more than they get for goods sent abroad. How long is this state of things going to continue?"

Several years ago when facts and price lists were produced to show that the protected manufacturers were selling their products in foreign markets for considerably less money than they asked from the home purchaser, it was said in explanation that these were simply the surplus and out of date articles which the manufacturers shipped and were glad to get rid of at any price. Of course this was a put-up excuse, which no one with any sense believed then, although it was put forward with apparent sincerity. But they have quit that kind of talk now, the absurdity of which would be apparent even to them, in view of the steady and large increase in our manufactured exports, which now amount to more than one-fourth of our total exports.

But the beneficiaries of this tariff, who contribute so liberally to Republican campaign funds, know they are in no danger while there is a Republican majority in Congress, and therefore go right along and do their own charging.

DICTATOR HANNA.

Mark Hanna is taking a hand in to break the deadlock in the Senatorial fight in Nebraska, where they have been pegging away for three weeks and are no nearer electing a Senator than they were three weeks ago. He is afraid they will keep up the fight and as a result the party may become divided and endanger its supremacy in the next election. He journeyed to Nebraska during the campaign with the express view of securing a Republican majority in the Legislature to ensure the election of Republican Senators, one for four and another for six years. He succeeded in carrying the Legislature and it is said secured promises from the prospective candidates for the Senate that there would be no protracted fight, and nothing to prevent agreeing on the men before the Legislature adjourned.

He doesn't think they are keeping faith with him and hence has sent them word that they must quit their factional squabbling and get together. Whether they will recognize Hanna's right to sit in Washington and dictate to them remains to be seen, but Hanna isn't backward in sending his orders to them. He is a daisy and a boss with a big B.

BOOK NOTICES.

The reader will enjoy McClure's Magazine for February which is filled with varied and interesting reading matter appropriately and copiously illustrated. The young reader will be interested in the story of Hernando De Soto, and his adventures, and in fishing for the leaping Tuna on the coast of California. Published by the S. S. McClure Company, 141-155 E. 25th street, New York.

The North American Review for February presents a large and very interesting list of contents which the intelligent reader will enjoy and profit by. Included in the list is an interesting article on "What England Ought to Do," another on "The South and the Negro," and another on "Sub stitutes for Ship Subsidies," all by writers of ability. Address North American Review, Franklin Square, New York.

The February number of The Century Magazine maintains its excellence not only in the superior quality of reading matter presented, but in its splendid illustrations, one of the attractive features of this publication. Among the especially interesting papers in this number is one on the progress of the steel industry and another on "The People on the Top of the World." But every paper in it is interesting. Published by The Century Company, Union Square, New York.

We are in receipt of The World Almanac for 1901, an exceedingly valuable publication, containing in its 540 compact pages a vast quantity of useful and valuable information, some of which is rarely found in similar publications. It is really more of an encyclopedia than an almanac, and supplies information at a glance which it would require much labor hunt up. As a book for general reference, it is invaluable.

Hopeless and Helpless.

The consequences of a diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system are most disastrous to the whole body. One by one every organ may become involved. The misery is maddening. The most extreme cases of "stomach trouble" and the evils resulting from it have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, purifies the blood and builds up the body with sound healthy flesh.

"I was taken with severe headache," writes Thomas A. Swarts, Box 103, Sub-Station C, Columbus, Ohio, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. I just gave money to the doctors whenever I thought they would do me any good, but the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then I saw one of my neighbor boys and he said, "Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself." The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— MacArthur's report of operations and conditions in the Philippines, in 1900, fills two bulky volumes of 600 pages each, and yet Senator Spooner complains that congress has no information about the situation in those islands! — Chattnooga Times, Dem.

—— The establishment of the Cuban government is the first essential step, and that must be left to the Cubans themselves. After that comes the negotiation of treaties. If Congress should not be satisfied with the result, it can declare war upon Cuba. But if we are to have another war of subjugation let it be entered upon honestly and not surreptitiously by a cowardly evasion of our pledges and a disregard of all our principles. — Philadelphia Times, Dem.

—— The resolution in favor of ship-subsidies adopted by the Brunswick Maritime Congress may have caused some annoyance to Senator Clay, who is one of the leaders of the opposition to the ship-subsidy bill, but it will not cause him to relax his efforts to defeat the bill. He is satisfied that the resolution does not express the sentiment of the people of Georgia or the South, and he will continue to oppose the bill with the same vigor that he has heretofore shown.—Savannah News, Dem.

—— For the first time in the history of warship building, neither the Cramps nor the Union Iron Works put in a bid for one of the three new cruisers, St. Louis, Milwaukee and Charleston, to cost not more than $2,800,000 each, including $50,000 for armor. The reason doubtless is, that they have more orders for vessels than they can supply if they undertook to build a cruiser now—more proof that we can build all the ships we need, without a subsidy. —Brooklyn Citizen, Dem.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. Geo. D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Headache, Backache, Fainting and Dizzy Spells. — High Point Enterprise: Last Sunday night Mrs. Ausband accidentally broke a lamp chimney at her home. This was the first accident of the kind at her home in 35 years.

— Goldsboro Argus: The little child of Mr. W. G Smith, who was so badly burned late Saturday afternoon died Saturday night. Mr. Smith has lately come to Goldsboro from Duplin county.

— Chapel Hill News: Mr. Adolphus Tilley, a prominent farmer who lives three miles west of Chapel Hill, informs the News that last year on seven acres of land planted in cotton he gathered 10,480 pounds of seed cotton, which made seven bales. He sold five bales for ten cents per pound.

— Danbury Reporter: There are rumors in the wind that a charter has been framed by a strong company, which will be carried before the Legislature, to build a branch line from Madison to Mt. Airy via Danbury. The Reporter has it on good authority that the prospects for a railroad running through this section are brighter than ever before. We are permitted to give no names, but a big deal is reasonably certain.

— Newton Enterprise: The Blue Ridge is covered with snow and can be plainly seen from Newton.—— A lumber yard and planing and building materal plant for Newton is now a certainty. It may also be enlarged into a furniture factory.——Messrs. R M. Warlick, S. L. Rhyne, J. W. Harbister, J. M. Rowe and J. F. Hermen have formed a company to manufacture brooms on a large scale.

— Aberdeen Telegram: There has been quite an exodus of negroes from this section this month to Florida and Alabama, to work turpentine. —— The store of Graham & Allred was broken into last Saturday night and quite a lot of goods were stolen. A clue to the thief was obtained on Monday and by Tuesday morning two negroes were caught, tried and sent to jail to await the action of the next term of the Superior Court. A lot of the stolen goods were found in their possession.

— Statesville Landmark: Mr. Columbus Kerr, of Statesville, who is now sixty-two years old, has a record as a Confederate soldier in which the month of May figures prominently. Mr. Kerr enlisted in Company C, Fourth North Carolina Regiment, in May, 1861. May 31, 1862 he was wounded, and he was wounded again just one year later—May 31, 1863. About a year later—May 30, 1864—he was taken prisoner, and May 19. 1865, he was released from prison at Elmira, N. Y.

Dutch Streets.

Commend us to the ever tranquil Dutch streets, with their mellow antique houses. These mostly follow circles, as is to be expected in a fortified place, but the typical Dutch street, found everywhere, is the line of houses by the canal, a range of old trees in front shading the Indian red brick behind, with its bright white window sashes, as bright as much polished brass. Nothing is more suggestive of tranquil repose and old fashion. They stretch along the broad canal before them, where bridges cross and barges lie together alongside.

Even in very populous capitals we come in the suburbs on some delightful, retired bits of canal, leaving much the same effect as does Church row at Hampstead. Old fashioned well to do folk live here in retirement. There is one such at the entrance of The Hague on the Scheveningen side, where the charming woods begin. Anything more old world and solemnly attractive cannot be imagined. We might well fancy ourselves back to the days of Sir William Temple and of William of Orange, who may have strolled along these banks.—Gentleman's Magazine.

THE ONLY CURE FOR NERVOUS DISEASES

There is one and only one specific known to medicine for diseases arising from impure blood and a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound.

It is the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced.

It is not a patent medicine. It is not foisted upon public attention by smart advertisement writers. Its proprietors claim nothing for it that it will not accomplish. It appeals to no prejudices, but relies absolutely upon its unparalleled record for preventing and curing the diseases for which the greatest physician of modern times intended it.

No remedy ever accomplished so much good; none ever achieved such universal attention. There is no substitute for it, and there can be none Paine's celery compound makes the sick well.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Traders in cotton were slow to express an opinion concerning the market to day and on every hand were many evidences of muddled ideas and conflicting sentiment. So far as prices were concerned the bears had the better position, though the declines recorded were not sufficiently important to gratify the shorts. On the opening call the market was quiet with prices one point higher to three points lower Disappointing cables brought out selling for both accounts. The selling was on a small scale, but prices were forced steadily downward and by midday the loss was six to eight points, with the feeling at that time generally pessimistic. The South furnished a few buying orders, but these were soon filled, after which profit taking by p t shorts constituted the bulk of the buying. The bears were not inclined to press matters, however, as receipts failed to reach the large amounts recorded a year ago. Fall River was rather better, while Southern spot markets were described as firmer and tending upward on Northern mill support and conservative offerings. Some of the port towns were 1 16 to 1-8c higher, with a fair trade in progress at the advance. The semi weekly figures proved bearish. The market was finally barely steady with prices four to thirteen points lower.

GRANT'S CIGARS.

How the General Came to Be a Great Smoker.

"My father," said General Frederick D. Grant, "tried to smoke while at West Point, but only because it was against the regulations; and then he didn't succeed very well at it. He really got the habit from smoking light cigars and cigarettes during the Mexican war, but it wasn't a fixed habit. When he left the army and lived in the country, he smoked a pipe—not incessantly. I don't think that he was very fond of tobacco then, and really there was always a popular misconception of the amount of his smoking.

"But he went on as a light smoker, a casual smoker, until the day of the fall of Fort Donelson. Then, the gunboats having been worsted somewhat and Admiral Foote having been wounded, he sent ashore for my father to come and see him. Father went aboard, and the admiral, as is customary, had his cigars passed. My father took one and was smoking it when he went ashore. There he was met by a staff officer, who told him that there was a sortie and the right wing had been struck and smashed in. Then my father started for the scene of operations. He let his cigar go out, naturally, but held it between his fingers.

"He rode hither and yon, giving orders and directions, still with the cigar stump in his hand. The result of his exertions was that Donelson fell after he sent his message of 'unconditional surrender' and 'I propose to move immediately upon your works.' With the message was sent all over the country that Grant was smoking throughout the battle, when he only carried this stump from Foote's flagship. But the cigars began to come in from all over the Union. He had 11,000 cigars on hand in a very short time. He gave away all he could, but he was so surrounded with cigars that he got to smoking them regularly. But he never smoked as much as he seemed to smoke. He would light a cigar after breakfast and let it go out, and then light it again, and then let it go out and light it; so that the one cigar would last until lunchtime."—McClure's Magazine.

The Clergyman and the H.

A true anecdote of the old election days, which Mr. Gladstone used to relate, will perhaps bear retelling at the moment. At the celebrated election in 1805, at which Mr. Gladstone lost his seat for Oxford university—becoming, to use his own phrase, "unmuzzled"—his opponent was Gathorne Hardy. The practice at a contested election was for each elector to record his vote by word of mouth before tellers for each party.

The late Professor Henry Smith was acting as teller for Mr. Gladstone, when an uncouth country clergyman entered, and, to the usual request for whom he wished to record his vote, replied, in his confusion, "I vote for Mr. Glad—I mean for 'Ardy."

"I claim that vote," quietly put in Professor Henry Smith.

"No, no," protested the clergyman. "I did not finish the name."

"Quite so, but you did not even begin the other," retorted the professor.—London Chronicle.

The Lost Art Not Found.

"What was the final decision?"

"Oh, such a hubbub arose that nobody heard what anybody said."—Indianapolis Journal.

A CLUSTER OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

I cannot find his grave.
Though I seek it far and nigh,
But I seem to hear from the cedars
A voice like the wild dove's cry.

It may be the fitful wind
In the branches overhead
Or the sigh of the last leaf falling
On the water I pour for the dead!

I pray and yearn and watch,
And something flutters by.
Is it a sign from his spirit
Or only a butterfly?

The poor last flowers of the plum tree
By my desolate eaves,
Perceiving, lamenting her absence,
Are closing their leaves!

They worship her; she was their goddess,
The soul whence they drew
The life of their freshness and fragrance—
Their sunshine and dew!

Faith never knew such another.
So fair and so sweet;
The flowers that she trod upon loved her
And kissed her white feet!

—Richard Henry Stoddard in Saturday Evening Post.

The Inevitable One.

He Came at Last.

It was the morning of Mi-Careme in Paris.

In a room in a hotel overlooking the Place de l'Opera Elaine Maxwell was listening to a man who was speaking earnestly to her. She was a woman of about 30, with quite refined features, still pretty. The man was middle aged, between 40 and 50, with hair turned gray. He was well preserved and carried himself uprightly. He stood before her, one hand resting on the back of a chair. "I cannot offer you love," he was saying quietly. "It would be absurd at my age to protest it. But all that the deepest affection could give should be yours."

"I, too, could not give you my love!" she said in a low tone.

"Ours should be a common sense union," he continued. "We'd return affection for affection and lead a comfortable existence. I am tired of myself. I want some one to take an interest in—a kindred spirit. In you I firmly believe I have found that some one."

"Give me a little time!" she said hurriedly, a slight flush rising to her cheek.

"As long as you like," he said courteously. He took the hand she extended to him. "You understand," he said, looking at her kindly, "that I want you to do exactly as you wish. If your good sense prompts you to say 'No,' you will have no hesitation in saying it?"

"I will not," she answered. "Goodby—and thank you!" she added in a soft tone.

As soon as he had vanished she sank into a chair. She closed her eyes and thought. She had said she could not give him her love. It was true. She felt her love had been killed within her years ago—only the memory lingered. Yet not a day passed but what she thought of it. It was such a poor little commonplace story too. She, a girl of 20—he, a headstrong youngster, a few months her senior.

She had loved him devotedly. Then one day came the misunderstanding. It was nothing serious, yet she felt she was hurt, and her trust in him had been shaken. She spoke bitterly. There was an open quarrel, and they separated. The next day he was offered an appointment in India. With her words ringing in his ears he accepted it and so passed out of her life. Some time afterward she heard that he had married. Since then not a word.

Now Mr. Carbutt proposed that she should become his wife. Why not? She felt unutterably weary of the purposeless life she had been leading. In ten years she would be more weary still. There was no reason why she should remain single—no earthly reason at all, she repeated to herself.

She rose from her seat and, opening the window, stepped on to the balcony. Paris had begun its holiday. In the street below people were hurrying along with smiling faces; a crowd had already assembled on the steps of the opera house; men selling confetti in huge bags were doing a roaring business. Flags were flying, and the strains of a band approaching in the distance gave notice that the procession had started and was well on its way.

Elaine watched the scene with an air of abstraction. A moment or so afterward she heard the door of the room open. She turned and saw a tiny white form with a mass of golden hair standing doubtfully at the entrance.

"I want to see moosie," she lisped.

Elaine had often noticed the child about the hotel and had fallen in love with her face. She belonged to a lady whose rooms were at the other end of the corridor and looked out on a back street. Elaine hurried forward and took the child's hand in hers.

"So you shall, dear," she said, smiling. "Come along."

"Marjorie," cried a voice, and a nurse appeared at the door. The hand had approached nearer. Miss Marjorie glanced at her, then threw a wistful glance toward the window.

Elaine turned with a laugh to the nurse.

"I should be so delighted if you would let her stay with me," she said. "I will look after her."

Thus, a few moments afterward, Miss Marjorie was sitting on the balcony beside Elaine, gazing on the scene with an air of ineffable content. The square was full now, the balconies lined with people throwing confetti, and gay colored streamers were blowing from every window. Round one corner the crowd was being thrust back and a passage cleared by the gendarmes for the procession.

Elaine hardly took her gaze off her charge. Her cheeks were flushed, and there was a soft gleam in her eyes as she watched the child's keen enjoyment. Then the thoughts came crowding back to her mind, and she sighed. It seemed she had missed the one thing in life worth having by so little.

There was a knock at the door, and a lady entered. Elaine recognized her as Mrs. Rycroft.

"I have to thank you very much," she said, "for burdening yourself with Marjorie. I hope she has not been troublesome!"

"Not at all. Do let her stop until the procession has passed," she said eagerly. "Would you stay also? There is a splendid view from the balcony."

She led the way across the room and insisted that her visitor should take her seat on the balcony. She could see perfectly well from behind.

Then the procession slowly made its way past their window.

Elaine's glance drifted over Marjorie's golden hair to the crowd below, who had cheered themselves hoarse. Idly she looked from face to face. Suddenly she gave a start. On the other side of the street, leaning against a lamppost, was a tall man, deeply bronzed. She had recognized him at once with a shiver. She drew back quietly into the room, her gaze riveted on the strong, handsome face. Then a strange thing happened. He raised his eyes, and they rested on the balcony. His face lighted up eagerly, and he waved his arm excitedly. Elaine was puzzled. She was sure he could not have seen her.

Then she saw a quick look of determination cross his face, and he started to push his way through to the hotel.

Elaine began to tremble. Mrs. Rycroft turned and saw that she was pale.

"We have tired you—letting you stand all the time!" she cried in alarm. She got up from her seat and came into the room. Little Marjorie trotted after her.

"No, not at all," stammered Elaine. Her ears were straining for any sound outside the door.

There was a footstep in the corridor. She turned her back to the door and stood facing the window. There was a tap at the door; then it opened, and some one entered the room.

"I saw you from the street below, Mrs. Rycroft!" cried a strong voice. "I got to Paris a day earlier—this morning—and came right along."

Mrs. Rycroft shook hands with him warmly. The man did not notice the slight figure standing with her back toward him by the window. He was bending over little Marjorie. He lifted her in his arms.

"Marjorie, dear," said Mrs. Rycroft, "this is your father." She turned to him. "Isn't she a little darling, Dick?"

The woman at the window was drinking in every word eagerly.

"Are oo weally my father?"

"Weally," laughed the big man, kissing the child on the forehead.

Mrs. Rycroft crossed quickly to Elaine. "I am sure I beg your pardon," she said in a tone of warm apology. "In the excitement of meeting my brother-in-law, who has just returned from India, I quite forgot for the moment that we were trespassers."

She turned to Hesketh.

"Dick," she said, "these are not my rooms. This young lady kindly invited us in here to see the procession from the balcony."

He took a step forward. Elaine knew the moment had arrived. She turned round slowly, and her gaze met his. He dropped a step back in his astonishment.

"Elaine!" he gasped.

"Why, you know one another!" cried Mrs. Rycroft.

Elaine summoned a smile.

"Yes," she faltered, "Mr. Hesketh and I knew one another years ago—before he went to India." She put out her hand, and he took it awkwardly. His eyes were fastened upon her, but he said nothing.

Mrs. Rycroft broke the silence.

"Well, you must come and lunch with my husband and our party today," she said cheerily. "Then you can talk over old times."

Elaine hesitated. Marjorie came over to her and touched her hand.

"Do tum," she said pleadingly, "and play with me."

Elaine felt the little warm fingers nestling in the palm of her hand. She raised her eyes to Mrs. Rycroft.

"Thank you," she said. "I shall be pleased."

It was the afternoon of the same day. Hesketh was with Elaine in the drawing room of the hotel. It chanced to be empty. For a few moments there was silence. He was standing in front of her. She looked up, and their eyes met.

"Elaine!" he cried hoarsely. "Can you ever forgive me? You don't know what I have gone through. In India I tried to steel my heart against you, to think of you bitterly. I married, but it was not for love. It was for power, money, promotion. I deceived myself that it was right to do so." He paused. "She was a good woman, and I was kind to her. When Marjorie was born, she died. I sent the child home with Mrs. Rycroft, and she has taken charge of her ever since."

He stopped again. Elaine waited with beating heart for him to continue.

"And when I saw you again this morning," he cried, "I knew that I loved you—that I have never ceased from loving you all these years! Is it too much to ask you—to forgive—to be my wife now?" he added slowly.

He looked into her eyes, and she returned his gaze. She saw the face of the one man she had loved.

"We were both to blame," she murmured.

"Ah, we have wasted ten years," he cried, "but we can make it up."

The walls seemed to fade away. In their place a country lane. Again they were walking together, her arm resting on his. A feeling of happiness and content crept over her.

"Yes, we can make it up," she said gently.

In the hall Mrs. Rycroft had met Mr. Carbutt. She chatted to him for a few moments.

"Wasn't it strange that my brother-in-law should have known Miss Maxwell years ago?" she said casually.

He made his way up stairs. He opened the door of the drawing room quietly and peeped in. Apparently it was deserted. Then his eyes rested on two figures at the far end of the room. He looked for a moment to make sure, then retired, shutting the door noiselessly. He walked slowly up to his room.

"A chance return to the inevitable one," he said with a sigh, "and my poor little 'union of affection' vanishes into thin air. I suppose that I must be glad—for her sake," he added softly.—Mainly About People.

Advice to Young Men.

Foolish spending is the father of poverty. Don't be ashamed of hard work. Work for the best salaries and wages you can get, but work for half price rather than be idle. Be your own master, and do not let society or fashion swallow up your individuality—hat, coat and boots. Do not eat up or wear all you can earn. Compel your selfish body to spare something for profit's sake. Be stingy to your own appetite, but merciful to other's necessities. Help others, and ask no help for yourself. Be proud. Let your pride be of the right kind. Be too proud to wear a coat you cannot afford to buy; too proud to lie or steal or cheat; too proud to be stingy—in short, be a man of integrity and individuality.

Able to Hear It.

It is well known that Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune was somewhat deaf, although his ability at times to hear what was said in an ordinary tone of voice was frequently remarked.

It is related of him that he dropped into the business department of the office one day to make an inquiry about something that had occurred to him, and a young man who had been in his employ only a few months undertook in a loud tone of voice to enlighten him.

"What did you say?" asked Mr. Medill, putting his hand to his ear.

The young man repeated the question in a still louder voice.

"I can't hear you," said the editor.

"Oh, chase yourself around the block, you old granny!" muttered the impatient employee just above his breath.

"I am not an old granny," said Mr. Medill, turning away, "and I shall not chase myself around the block."

The fresh young man made immediate arrangements to say goodby to his job, but the great editor probably thought that the lesson he had received was sufficient and did not disturb him.

A Story of Culberson.

In the Fifty-first congress, when Speaker Reed first gained the title of "czar" by his arbitrary decisions, Judge Culberson was one of his strongest supporters, although he gave the speaker no public indorsement, for political reasons. One afternoon while the Democrats were in a terrible tumult over a decision of the speaker and the proceedings of the house were very near riot a thunderstorm came up. When the confusion was highest, a blinding flash of lightning and a terrible crash of nature's artillery startled every soul on the floor and caused a profound silence. Judge Culberson, like everybody else, was deeply moved, but was the first to recover. "That was God Almighty, sir, calling this house to order," he exclaimed in an impressive tone, addressing the speaker. Then, turning to his colleagues, he said, "Now let us proceed to business like men."

An Unreliable Adage.

"I suppose you lay a great deal of stress on the adage 'Money talks,'" said the man who gets familiarly facetious.

"No, sir," said Senator Sorghum. "If you had observed as many investigations as I have, you'd know that the success of pecuniary enterprise frequently depends on the ability to keep perfectly still."—Washington Star.

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 6.

MRS. NATION'S CRUSADE IN TOPEKA, KANSAS.

With Three Followers She Wrecked the Finest Joint in the City—Damage Estimated at $1,500.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

TOPEKA, KAS., Feb 5.—Mrs. Carrie Nation and three followers to-day wrought damage to the extent of $1,500 in the "Senate," the finest equipped "joint" in Topeka. She also gained the first police protection.

The police followed up her raid of to day and arrested the proprietor of the Senate and two men who were guarding the place and the stock of liquor the saloon secured to sell the crowd that flocked to view the wreckage. Mrs. Nation was arrested but promptly released.

Mrs. Nation and her wreckers, each armed with a hatchet, sallied forth at daybreak. They forced their way past a negro who guarded the door of the "Senate," and in less than ten minutes had strewn the floor with broken mirrors, bottles, slot machines and splintered bar fixtures. The negro fired a shot of warning into the ceiling, but it had no effect. Presently a police man stalked leisurely into the room and said: "Well, Sister Nation, I guess we'll have to arrest you again."

Mrs. Nation had just smashed the last bottle and was ready to go. The police judge was glad to release her when she appeared for trial, and administering a rebuke to that official, Mrs. Nation soon walked down Kansas avenue, free again.

Later, Chief of Police Stahl, in an interview with a reporter, said:

"I do not care if Mrs. Nation smashes every joint in Topeka. I sympathize with her. I hope she will close up the saloons of the city. As an officer of the law, though, it is my duty to arrest her every time she creates a disturbance or destroys property. If we had the right kind of State officers it would not be necessary for Mrs. Nation to do what she is doing."

There are reports of plots to hurt Mrs. Nation. It was said that several saloon men have charged thick glass bottles with tremendous pressure so that an explosion will follow their being broken. She is not at all disturbed by these stories.

To-day Mrs. Nation dictated an appeal "To the Children of the High Schools of the United States," in which she urged children everywhere to smash saloon windows with rocks.

When Mrs. Nation appeared in court to answer the charges of "disturbing the peace" and "smashing a joint" the first charge was dismissed, notwithstanding the crusader demanded a trial, and a hearing on the second charge was set for Thursday, the prisoner being released without bond. "The charge of disturbing the peace is dismissed" stated Judge Magraw, as the crusader stood at the railing. The charge followed her arrest yesterday after three fruitless attempts to wreck the "Unique Restaurant."

"I object to the dismissal," exclaimed Mrs. Nation. "I was arrested wrongfully and deprived of my liberty."

To the charge of smashing a joint Mrs. Nation replied:

"I plead guilty to that. I rather think I did the smashing."

His Honor demanded that the city attorney be brought in and be compelled to give cause for arresting her yesterday. The police judge tried to ignore her and the chief of police refused to listen to her demand.

Then Judge Magraw began to read the law touching offenders who create a public disturbance or cause riot. Mrs Nation interrupted him several times and told the court it "might as well read a novel to me as that stuff. It does not cover my case."

The Judge was indignant and Chief Stahl threatened to have the marshal put her out.

Judge Magraw had no desire to hold the prisoner and permitted her to go on her own recognizance to appear next Thursday for trial. Mrs. Nation thanked him, shook hands and departed.

Mrs Nation was arrested again to-night on a warrant sworn out by the owners of the "Senate" saloon. She is charged with malicious destruction of property. She was released on $100 bond for trial Saturday.

A Hadley, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., fought this afternoon over the merits of Mrs. Nation's crusade with a negro named Jackson, who said he wished Mrs. Nation had been killed.

John C. Nicholson, a lawyer from Newton, is here with a bill he has prepared to legalize joint smashing.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL STILL IN THE WAY

Its Advocates Want to Set Aside Everything Else for the Measure.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Postal Service—Objection Made to Organization of Employes for Purpose of Enforcing Legislation. Appropriations Assailed

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Senate to-day passed the District of Columbia Appropriation bill and partially considered the bill making appropriations for the support of the West Point Military Academy. The Ship Subsidy bill was formally laid aside and superseded as the unfinished business.

The chair appointed Messrs. Hanna, Spooner and Jones of Arkansas, members of the joint committee on inauguration and Messrs. Chandler and Caffery as tellers of the vote for President and Vice President when the electoral vote is counted.

Senator Teller called up and spoke upon his resolution calling upon the Secretary of War for information concerning the reports of the deportation of George T. Rice, editor of a Manila newspaper, to the United States. Senator Teller said he did not know whether Rice's paper had been suppressed, but he had been credibly informed that four newspapers had been suppressed in Luzon by the military authorities.

Senator Teller spoke of the proceeding as one of importance to all, for Mr. Rice was a citizen of the United States and an offence against him was an offence against every other citizen of this country. He said it was no wonder that Mr. Rice was defiant, knowing no law to justify his expulsion.

Senator Teller's resolution was agreed to and the District of Columbia Appropriation bill was taken up.

At 1 o'clock the Ship Subsidy bill was laid before the Senate as the unfinished business. Senator Allison asked that the Subsidy bill be laid aside temporarily.

Senator Jones, Arkansas, objected. He said the effect of granting the request would be to continue the Subsidy bill as the unfinished business and he did not believe this should be done in view of the condition of the Senate's business. If the appropriation bills should fail, their failure, he said, would be to keep the Subsidy bill pending and he thought the country should understand the disposition to set aside everything else for that measure. He referred to the talk of an extra session of Congress, saying that it was due to the evident determination to keep the Subsidy bill to the front to the exclusion of all other measures.

The District of Columbia bill was taken up and passed at 5 o'clock. The Military Academy bill was taken up. All the amendments suggested by the Committee on Military Affairs, including that prohibiting hazing, was agreed to.

Senator Foraker then offered an amendment providing for the appointment of four cadets from Porto Rico, and Senator Allen, an amendment requiring cadets upon entering West Point to take an oath not to engage in hazing, but without acting upon either, the Senate at 5.10 o'clock adjourned.

House of Representatives.

The day in the House was devoted to the continuation of the discussion of controverted questions in connection with the postal service. Mr. Griggs, Georgia, spoke against the organization of postal employes for forcing legislation. Mr. Moody, Massachusetts, discussed the question of rail way mail pay from the stand point of a member of the joint postal commission. Mr. Bromwell, Ohio, assailed the appropriations for special mail facilities from New York to New Orleans. Mr. Bromwell declared that the Post master General repeatedly had declared that he did not desire the appropriations and only had used them because Congress made them.

Mr. Catchings, Mississippi, and Mr. Meyer, Louisiana, defended these appropriations as necessary for the expedition of the Southern mail.

Mr. Griggs, a member of the Post office Committee, took the floor with a set speech against the organization of various classes of government employes with the object of increasing their salaries and in some cases creating a civil pension list. He argued that government employes were better paid than similar employes in private life and there was no justice in their constant and persistent demands for higher salaries.

Mr. Moody said the postal commission developed the fact that instead of paying to the railways on an average 40 cents per ton per mile for carrying the mails, as the Postoffice Department had led the country to believe, the actual cost averaged about 12½ cents per ton per mile. From the investigation he had made Mr. Moody said, if he were compelled to guess he should say that the express business was more profitable to the railroads than carrying the mails, that passenger business was less profitable than either, and that the most profitable of all to the railroads was carrying freight.

At 5 30 P. M. the committee rose and the House adjourned.

YOUTSEY SENTENCED.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

GEORGETOWN, KY., February 5.—Henry E. Youtsey, stenographer to Gov. Taylor during his incumbency, and who was tried as a principal in the shooting of Gov. Wm. Goebel, and found guilty, was arraigned before Judge Cantrill late this afternoon and sentenced to life imprisonment.

When sentence was pronounced Youtsey exclaimed: "I am innocent! I have been convicted by base and infamous subordinations of perjury."

No appeal will be taken and the prisoner will be taken to State's prison shortly.

THREATEN TO INVADE PORTUGUESE TERRITORY.

An American in Command of the Boer Forces—British Squadron Ordered to Lorenzo Marques.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, February 5.—The British Foreign Office has received semi-official confirmation of reports that the Boers, commanded by Blake, are threatening to enter Lorenzo Marques and that the local Portuguese authorities had requested British assistance. It is further asserted that the British squadron has been ordered to Lorenzo Marques. It is also reported here that British troops are advancing rapidly towards the Portuguese frontier.

The Blake referred to is probably John Y. Filmore Blake, who was in command of a regiment of Irish and American rough riders in the service of the Transvaal. Blake, who is an old West Pointer, first went to the Transvaal in 1894 or 1895.

THE JEFFRIES-RUHLIN FIGHT.

Legal Proceedings in Cincinnati—Promoters of the Fight Confident That It Will Take Place There.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

CINCINNATI, O., February 5.—Arguments and testimony were heard to-day before Judge Hollister, of the common pleas court on an application for an injunction against the Jeffries Ruhlin prize fight in this city February 15th.

There was first an attempt by the defence to dismiss all the members of the Saengerfest board who are not members of the Athletic Association. There are eleven of the thirty-one included in this list. Attorney General Sheets, who represents Governor Nash and the State, protested and asked for a temporary injunction against the eleven who have not filed an answer. Court decided that an injunction later could go out to these eleven.

After considerable sparring among the attorneys, it was then decided that the case would proceed on its merits for a permanent injunction rather than for a temporary restraining order, but the defence reserved the right of appeal to higher courts.

The hearing probably will not be completed this week. After submitting the contracts and other documents only four witnesses were examined to-day.

The promoters of the fight to day insist that they are more confident than ever that the fight will take place here. Jeffries never let up on his training to attend the trial, and Ruhlin resumed his training in the afternoon. The sale of tickets to-day was unusually large, and all the preparations for the event are going ahead the same as if there was no opposition.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S WILL.

The Bulk of Her Private Fortune Goes to King Edward.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, February 5.—The latest rumor regarding Queen Victoria's will is that it bequeaths £140,000 each to the Duke of Connaught, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Princess Louise and Princess Beatrice, and includes liberal legacies for the Duchess of Albany and a number of the late Queen's grandchildren. The bulk of her private fortune, however, goes to King Edward, and both Balmoral and Osborne House are given to the King. Two small houses on the Osborne estate are given to Princess Beatrice.

CHINESE ANXIOUS TO MAKE TERMS.

A Joint Meeting of the Officials With the Foreign Envoys at Pekin.

THE PUNISHMENT DISCUSSED.

Twelve Prominent Officials Designated by the Allies—Two of the Twelve Already Dead—Other Matters Touched Upon.

By Cable to the Morning Star

PEKIN, Feb. 5.—The Chinese plenipotentiaries, Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang, had a protracted meeting this morning with the foreign envoys. Twelve names of prominent Chinese officials were submitted with the request that China keep faith with the Powers and punish the persons named commensurate with their offenses.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries replied that China's earnest hope was to carry out fully the demands of the Powers and that she felt sure the punishment which would be inflicted would be satisfactory. It was discovered that two out of twelve of the persons named were already dead.

In certain cases, the Chinese plenipotentiaries gave reasons why the punishment inflicted should be banishment and not death, asserting that in these cases they particularly desired banishment only because the persons in question were so closely related to the throne.

A Long Conversation.

After a long conversation on the subject of punishment it was decided that the foreign envoys should draw up a full list of all accused officials, both national and provincial, with indictments preferring the guilt of each and the statement of the punishment required, which would then be presented to the Chinese plenipotentiaries for definite action.

Li Hung Chang, who is very weak from his recent illness, had to be carried in and out of the British legation. He is unable to walk, but his head seems as clear as ever.

The foreign envoys were impressed with the evident desire of both Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang to come to terms. Ching asked whether, provided China showed by every means in her power a desire to carry out the terms of the joint note, the foreign troops would leave Pekin.

The foreign envoys replied that this was a subject they could not discuss beyond saying that if everything were satisfactory they believed the Powers would begin to withdraw the troops early in the coming spring, but that this depended largely upon the Chinese themselves.

The Legation Guards.

Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang said they desired to know the names of the places where guards would be kept for the purpose of maintaining communication with the sea, in accordance with the terms of the joint note. They were informed that this was a subject regarding which the military authorities had more accurate knowledge than the envoys; but that at present no determination had been reached.

Prince Ching was anxious to know what provision would be made to control the legation guards and to prevent them from disturbing business. He asked if the guards would be allowed over all parts of the city.

To this inquiry the reply was given that the guards would certainly not be allowed to interfere with any avocations of the Chinese, but would be merely kept to guard the legations in case of necessity. Prince Ching was assured that in whatever part of the city the legation guards might go, they will be required to conform to laws which would be agreed upon, under pain of severe punishment for any infraction.

Question of the Forts.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries also touched upon the question of the forts, asking if it would be necessary to destroy these. As there seemed to be some diversity of opinion among the foreign envoys regarding this matter, it was left over until the question of punishment has been definitely decided.

An American Missionary.

PEKIN, February 5.—The Rev. W. S. Ament, one of the missionaries of the American Board of Foreign Missions, recently arrested by German and French troops near Tung Chow and charged with endeavoring to extort money from the Chinese villagers, has not yet been released.

The French troops are holding him for investigation, asserting that he obtained money from between thirty and forty villages where Christians had been killed, on the ground that the money was indemnity payable to the families of the killed.

A CABINET COUNCIL.

With Spooner's Bill Enacted Upon It Is Believed an Extra Session of Congress Will Be Called.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—The cabinet to-day reached a tentative conclusion not to augment or decrease the military force in China. Comfortable quarters for the troops are now being prepared and unless conditions change the present force will remain during the Winter.

The opinion is expressed that in the event of Congress passing the Spooner Philippine bill an extra session may be avoided, especially as there seems to be some doubt as to whether the Cuban consultution will be adopted in time for action, even at an extra session, if called soon after March 4th.

The Spooner bill enacted upon by this Congress, it is believed an extra session will be called.

A COLOSSAL DEAL.

Carnegie's Controlling Interest in the Carnegie Company Sold to J Pierpont Morgan.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The Tribune to morrow will say:

Negotiations for the sale of Andrew Carnegie's controlling interest in the stock of the Carnegie Company was brought to a successful conclusion on Monday, J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates being the purchasers. The terms of the deal cannot at this time be announced, but the transaction is a colossal one, rivalling the recent change of control of the Southern Pacific, when that property passed to the hands of Union Pacific interests. Mr. Carnegie held nearly 54 per cent. of the $160,000,000 of the Carnegie Company. This stock has not been listed on any Stock Exchange, but $1,500 was recently paid for a $1,000 share in the Carnegie Company. Assuming that Mr. Carnegie disposed of his holding at par he will receive fully $85,000,000 for his interest while at the same time he will retain his 53 or 54 per cent interest in the $160,000,000 bond issue of the Carnegie Company. The object aimed at by Mr. Morgan and the interest allied with him when treating with Mr. Carnegie, was the assurance of an enduring peace in the Steel Company of the United States and this condition is now believed to have been obtained.

SEABOARD AIR LINE.

Increased Activity in Proposed Connection Between Charleston and Augusta.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 5.—President and General Manager Jackson, of the Chattanooga, Augusta and Charleston Air Line, is here for the third time in two weeks on matters of importance connected with that road. He admits that his frequent visits to Charleston are due to the increased activity in the proposed Seaboard Air Line connection between Charleston and Augusta. He said that he was hard at work in the interest of the new road between this port and the city of Augusta and that the original plan of President Williams of the Seaboard will be carried out.

The Seaboard Air Line last year bought and paid $75,000 for real estate for terminal facilities in this city.
